Quality Assurance Statement

We at East Wind take the health of our customers extremely seriously. In fall/winter of 2012 numerous nut products were recalled. None of the East Wind Nut Butters products are affected or associated with this recall.

We produce our nut butter in our own facility. We have comprehensive FDA-approved sanitation procedures in place to prevent contamination with salmonella and other contaminants. These include roasting nuts at a temperature well above what the FDA recommends to eliminate harmful microorganisms. Our procedures were developed in cooperation with an independent food safety auditor. We periodically have private, third party food safety auditors come out to our facility to inspect and advise. We use this third-party confirmation to ensure we are doing everything possible to keep our nut butter safe. We have an excellent track record of compliance.

Wholesale customers can always request that we perform testing on a sample taken from each batch of nut butter included in their order. We arrange to have this done through an independent lab, Siliker. If requested in advance, we can always work this into our manufacturing schedule and add the fee to our invoice.

Please write or call if you have any further questions about our manufacturing of East Wind Nut Butters.

Sincerely,

Shaya Kraut
